REVIEW OF WONDERS OF NUCLEAR FUSION CREATING AN ULTIMATE ENERGY SOURCE BARBARA GUTH WORLDS OF WONDER SCIENCE SERIES FOR YOUNG READERS

- Erin Hunter is one of the most promising animal writers I've come across in a long time. Warriors #1, Into the Wild, follows the story of a house-cat, Rusty, who is drawn into the forest and the tradition-bound cat clans who live within. Starting out as an apprentice and gaining both friends and enemies, Rusty - remaned `Firepaw' by his clan - sets out to prove that cats of `kittypet' origin can survive just as well in the wild as forest-born cats. Very engaging to read, the sort of story that packs as much action as it can between the pages. Erin has done a fantastic job creating the world of her cats, with a partial language, traditions, histories, and definite way of life for them. A gripping tale and an excellent introduction into the feline world for older and younger readers.

- I think it's just a travesty to classify this book series as just for ages 9-12. Just as the Harry Potter books have become loved by people of all ages, this book series has the same potential. As a longtime fan of the book Tainchaser's Song by Tad Williams, I was always saddened that I could never find more books like that one...until now. Whereas, as a cat lover and protector, I had some initial issues with the message that cats resent being housecats and the gorifying of feral life, I was quickly able to remind myself that this is a fictional fantasy and should be read as such. I do suggest parents who do buy this book for their children remind them of that fact. With that said, after getting into the book I didn't want to put it down. And I can't wait to get the next one in the series. An adult reading this book will not feel as if it has been written for children - anything but. It is exciting, emotionally gripping, and superbly written.
